

Approximation

1 Why

We are given an object of some set, and what to find an element (in some subset) which is most similar to it.

2 Definition

Approximation is a mathematical optimization problem in which we find an element (from a given subset) which is similar to a particular element of a set. We call an element of the the subset an approximant.