

Independent Identically Distributed

1 Why

TODO

2 Definition

Two random variables are independent and identically distributed if they are independent and have the same law. A sequence of random variables is independent and identically distributed if the random variables are independent and each random variable has the same law.

2.1 Notation

We abbreviate independent and identically distributed by i.i.d., read aloud as “i i d”.