

Universal Character Code

Why

1

Definition

The universal character code (unicode) is a variable-length binary code.²

Notation

We often denote the set of unicode strings by string.

¹Future editions will include.

²Future editions will continue.

